

Peking Day By Day

BY "QUI VIVE"

Peking, July 20.—A Summer night sky of matchless cobalt blue. The stars, in myriad legions, dance and shimmer like sparkling amethysts, or lozenge-shaped crystals, refracting a thousand points of light.

In the east a dull amber glow heralds the coming of the moon. Casts a gentle radiance over the thousands of geometrically curved roofs, replicas of the sagging folds of the Imperial Yellow marquee of Kublik Khan, and causes their tiles to glow.

A terrifying swell, terminating in a roaring scow, a giant rocket sweeps cometwise across the sky leaving an arc of amber fire. At the apex of its graceful arc it bursts with a loud report and emits a score of dancing fairy lanterns which, drift lazily earthward and are snuffed out, one by one, by the mantle of velvet black. As the last one glows and fades, there is a soft dull thud, as the rocket stick returns to earth—the prosaic stick which had so cleverly guided the orb of light in its flight.

There is the eager buzz of many tongues, as the conversational flood gates break their dams of wonderment. Then an expectant hush, a straining of eyes in the dark to catch the first glimpse of the next rocket, as it sweeps on its fiery course to oblivion!

During the past two weeks there have been many political "rockets" which have swept across the sky for brief intervals, glowing with all the promise of a brilliant future, and when the official support was withdrawn, fell to earth with a sickening thud. If the fate of a nation were not involved, the spectacle would only be pathetic, but as the hopes and fears of millions are concerned, the sight is somewhat terrifying.

The last "thud" was occasioned by the definite refusal of Mr. Wang Keh-min to assume the portfolio of Acting Minister of Finance. It was considerably more than a "dull thud," for Mr. Wang's career has been less meteoric than many of his predecessors. His refusal came as a bombshell thrown into the camp of optimistic patriots. No one, not even the most sanguine, believed that the meeting of the Directors of the Bank of China was anything more than a mere formality to reluctantly accept Mr. Wang's resignation, to appoint his successor, probably Mr. Ching Hwan—who is on good terms with the Chihli party—and promise the support of the Bank to Mr. Wang's future under-taking.

But, and a very big BUT, there is a nigger in the woodpile somewhere, and it is up not only to the politicians, but also to all others who have an interest in the fate of China to "smoke the nigger out" and find out where lies the difficulty. Mr. Wang recently bought a circular trip ticket from Peking, with stop-overs valid at Pao-tung and Loyang. He used up all his ticket and availed himself of the stop-over privileges.

Exactly what happened during the conferences with Marshal Tiao Kun and General Wu Peifu are probably known only to the trio concerned, and a Beneficent Deity, yet all the members of the quartette decline to be interviewed. Speculation has been rife, and in some quarters it is said that Mr. Wang did not appear particularly amenable to suggestions regarding the possession of several keys to the National Treasury House, and insisted upon keeping all the keys himself. An action without precedent. Others aver that General Wu did not approve of the long standing friendship known to exist between Tiao Kun and Mr. Wang, and told the latter so. Still others, and by far the greatest majority believe that Mr. Wang's decision was actuated solely by pressure brought to bear by his colleagues in the bank, who informed him for his own good and that of the bank, he must not consider accepting the portfolio of Finance Minister in such perilous times. Since Mr. Wang's personal finances and those of the bank are very closely connected, it would appear most reasonable that he had no other course to pursue, since without the backing of the bank, his career of Finance Minister would be considerably more like the aforementioned rocket—with dark curtains of oblivion afterwards.

Hence the political whirlpool is more muddy than before, since Mr. Wang's predecessor, Mr. Cheng Tiao-yuan, was ousted from office, in order that Mr. Wang might be persuaded to come in and fill the breach. But each day the breach grows larger and threatens eventually to engulf the whole country. There is only one loophole, as is always the case in "Irrevocable Decisions" in Cathay. Mr. Wang did not decline, flatly, absolutely wholeheartedly, but stated that he would require three days grace to think the matter over.

URGES DELAY IN CARRYING OUT STRAITS BASE SCHEME

London Editor Thinks
Plan Will Arouse
Suspicion

NEW CRITICISM
Australians Contend
Their Coast Should Be Protected

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 22.—In a leading article on the Singapore base, the Observer contends that until the air protection of London and Britain is amply secured, the strongest case for Singapore does not warrant the spending of a penny.

The paper dwells on the impression that the Singapore project will make upon foreign opinion, including Japanese, and says that Britain has no aggressive intentions and does not wish to give ground for the suggestion that she has. We do not wish to add to our enemies; we do wish to keep our friends.

For all these reasons the Singapore suggestion should not be hurried. If the Washington Pact in the eyes of our naval advisers is incomplete, then a supplementary conference should be summoned to perfect it. Before we are irrevocably committed to any departure from our naval policy in the East, there should be a frank discussion at the Imperial Conference.

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 23.—Reports from The Hague say that it is stated on good authority that Britain's decision relative to Singapore was the cause of the Dutch Cabinet's decision to introduce the Bill providing for the construction of several new warships especially for the defence of the East Indies, which brought about the resignation of the Dutch Finance Minister. It appears doubtful whether the Government will get a Parliamentary majority for the Bill.

(Reuter's Service)

Sydney, July 23.—Australian critics of the Singapore scheme are again raising the cry that a Pacific base ought to be on the east coast of Australia, preferably at Port Stephens.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokyo, July 23.—At the end of last week both the Foreign Minister and the Minister of the Navy received a deputation, from one of the parties of the Upper House who sought information on the British naval base at Singapore and the position of it as regards the Washington Agreement and his signatory Powers.

Reports of what was alleged to have transpired at the interview with Admiral Takarabe, the Minister of the Navy, which appeared in the press being very conflicting. Reuter's correspondent, on inquiry from an authoritative quarter, elicited the statement that the Minister told the interviewers substantially that the establishment of the base had long been contemplated by Britain, who, he was of opinion, was compelled to take such a step to secure the safety of her interests in China and India.

Count Uchida, the Foreign Minister, is credited on the same occasion with the remark that Singapore, being outside the sphere defined in the Washington Agreements, the question of its defence was a purely British concern.

London Writer
Sees Chang As
China's Saviour

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 22.—Discussing the situation in China, the Diplomatic Correspondent of the Observer says that Western observers are beginning to ask themselves whether, in default of General Wu Peifu, General Chang Tso-lin may not be the strong man whom China so urgently needs. He is crude and uncultured but he might prove strong enough to keep the Manchus in order.

Civil Governor Chang of Chekiang not only has no information concerning the present whereabouts of Capt. L. D. INDUSTRIAL GERMANY IS NEW PERIL TO M. POINCARE

French Premier Says
Recovery Is At Expense Of Allies

SEES OPPRESSION

Big Business Men As
'Haughty As Junkers'
He Avers

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, July 22.—M. Poincare, in a speech at Villiers-Cotterets, emphasised that German economic reconstruction was proceeding at the expense of the Allies. The organisation of German industry controlled all forms of production, and thus held the monopoly of national wealth. The German industrial leaders were masters of the Berlin Government and of the German press. They were subjecting the German Republic to a new caste, as haughty and as violently opposed to the liberties of the people as the Junkers, the definite installation of this regime of economic and social oppression in the center of Europe was utterly incompatible with the traditions of Britain and France and contrary to democratic ideas, of which they had up to the present been the best guardians in Europe.

If Germany's capacity to pay was imprudently enclosed in a fixed and permanent frame, she would quickly evade their arbitrary measures, reconquer economic supremacy and impose upon the world a most retrograde and immoral policy. The Allies, M. Poincare said in conclusion, must unite more closely than ever to avert this peril.

Paris, July 22.—Reports from Morocco state that the operations on the Azil front in the Marrakesh district having been completed, the flying column has begun to disband.

The Rumanian Government has consented to deliver 2,000 wagon-loads of nephtha to Hungarian refineries during August and September.

M. Poincare in the course of his speech at Villiers-Cotterets, replying to Mr. Lloyd George's statements, said: "It is amusing that we are able to restore, as we are doing, our devastated regions in face of the sumptuous expenditure of the Reich? Germany is not only not repairing the damage she has done and not undertaking improvements, but is destroying our credit. That is perhaps amusing for Mr. Lloyd George, but it is saddening and intolerable for France. If our British friends were to go into the Ruhr, they would understand the dangers of such an agglomeration of industrial force and would demand neither financial investigations nor international expertises. Earthquake Felt In Los Angeles

(Reuter's Service)

New York, July 23.—A severe earthquake occurred today in San Bernardino, Los Angeles and San Diego.

According to information received by THE CHINA PRESS last night, Civil Governor Chang is said to have admitted that he made arrangements through Kearney for the purchase of the arms from the Russians and sent Magistrate Hu of Hangchow as his personal emissary on the deal. The Civil Governor, however, knew nothing of the refugees aboard the Eldorado, the last Russian vessel which Kearney induced to come into Chinese waters, and after Kearney had landed the arms and ammunition the vessel was held up at Ching-hai when the refugees attempted to land. Kearney is reported to have promised them they could secure $1 a day jobs there.

Now, according to Civil Governor Chang, he is anxious to find Kearney so that the question of the refugees still on board the vessel can be settled.

A rumor, which was given some degree of authenticity by its publication in another morning newspaper yesterday, caused some to think that Capt. Kearney had been arrested at Ningpo and was now in the American jail. Capt. Kearney has not been arrested and his present whereabouts are still unknown.

Yesterday in the United States Court for China before Judge Charles S. Lobingier, Mr. F. J. Schuhl moved that the bankruptcy order made in the case of The Kearney Company, Inc. be set aside on the ground that at the time the petition was filed by E. Walduck, the ex-manager of the Kearney Company, there were three Directors acting on behalf of this Corporation and that there was no meeting of any kind or any resolution passed to take the Company into bankruptcy.

Mr. Schuhl also added that at the time the petition for bankruptcy was filed Walduck had already informed the public by means of notices in the press that he was no longer connected with the company.

Walduck, Mr. Schuhl submitted, had signed the petition as "ex-manager of the Kearney Company." Another point was that the petition did not show that this was done by a resolution of the Board of Directors. Surely, argued Mr. Schuhl, an ex-manager or manager was not the proper person to file a petition for bankruptcy? On these very facts Mr. Schuhl asked that the order be set aside.

ONE-MAN CONCERN

Judge C. S. Franklin stated that he filed the petition in bankruptcy, and as he had already testified in the United States Court before Commissioner Lorton, the entire stock of the Kearney Company, Inc., so far as he knew, was owned by one individual, and that individual was L. D. Kearney. Kearney had promised certain stock to others, and also made arrangements for the transfer of some stock to the trustee for his daughter. Therefore, it was a one man corporation, Kearney was sole director and sole stockholder.

On July 6 he had seen Kearney and taken from him a list of the debts and assets of the company. After Kearney had looked over this list he instructed Judge Franklin to file a petition for bankruptcy, and had given instructions to have Walduck sign it as manager. Judge Franklin said that he accordingly saw Walduck and instructed him likewise, and was told by Walduck of his desire to insert a notice in the papers to the effect that he had no connection with the Kearney Company, Incorporated. Walduck mentioned that the company was insolvent and that he had not been paid for over a month, and desired that the notice be inserted after the petition was signed.

AN ERROR

When the petition was prepared, Judge Franklin added, certain bills came through the post, and these were handed by Walduck to counsel. The information had to be incorporated and this necessitated the delay in filing the petition. In the meantime Walduck's notice had already appeared in the press, which in turn necessitated the term "ex" being prefixed to "manager."

Judge Franklin pointed out that he had received definite instructions

CITES MINNESOTA

Predicts Other Conservatives Will Be Defeated

(BY UNITED PRESS)

(Special To The China Press)
Caldwell, Idaho, July 23.—Senator William E. Borah, Idaho's favorite son and the leader of the progressive faction in Congress, speaking before his home-state constituents here today declared that the present trend in American politics is toward political revolution.

Senator Borah asserted that the result of the Minnesota election, in which Magnus Johnson, the Farmer-Labor radical candidate defeated Governor Jacob Preus, the conservative Republican candidate, was merely a cry of economic distress which, if unanswered, would surely lead to political revolution.

The Idaho progressive also predicted more over-turns in the general election when he said other conservatives who would not heed the call of the times would be forced out of office, giving way to more progressive men.

"The farmers of the United States are the victims of our international policy at the present time," Senator Borah said, "and that same international policy we are now pursuing must be wiped out or there will be trouble."

FURTHER HEARING OF DIAMOND CASE AT MIXED COURT

Prosecution Tries To Show
Complicity On Part Of Pawnbrokers

There was a further hearing in the Mixed Court yesterday of the case in which Messrs. R. and L. Goldmuntz are seeking to recover several thousand taels worth of diamonds alleged to have been secured by fraud, through the presentation of worthless bank orders.

The case for the prosecution was concluded with the presentation of testimony intended to show that the pawn shops where the diamonds were pawned were in connivance with the brokers alleged to have perpetrated the fraud. Mr. H. D. Rogers, appearing for the complainants, produced an expert witness who had gone over the pawn shop books. It was stated that in some instances the stones were marked "redeemed" in the books, but that the word "not" appeared in very small characters written in ink in conjunction with the entry. The prosecution contended further that if the stones were allowed to go out of the pawn broker's hands when claimed this was contrary to the custom, as several months' longer should have elapsed before they were disposed of.

The hearing was adjourned until this afternoon.

Washington, July 23.—Secretary of State Charles Evans Hughes is expected to await President Harding's wishes before deciding any action upon the British reparations note. The Events Leading Up To The Tragedy

CHINESE ENVOY TO LONDON TALKS ON 'FAMILY LIFE'

Chu Chao-hsin Attributes

Of Monarchy

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 22.—In a paper read at the Centenary of the Royal Asiatic Society Mr. Chu Chao-hsin, the Chinese Charge d'Affaires, dealing with the family life and social fabric of China, attributed the change in the social life of China during the last ten years mainly to the change in the form of Government.

He said that the monarchical regime in China had gone forever, and there was no alternative to a Republican form of Government. It was therefore especially incumbent on the Chinese authorities, while educating the people, to maintain their attachment to their family life because in time family relationship would become developed into public relationship. The foundation of the social fabric of China was as good as over, and all that was necessary to success was a combination of kindred spirits and patriotism.

Tilinsky was sentenced to six years' imprisonment, and his accomplices, M. and Mme. Schwenke, to eight months and three years' imprisonment respectively, both in confinement.

"Boy, The Fans!" Today's The Day Of "Great Heat"

Today, according to the Chinese calendar, is Ta-shu, the "Day of Great Heat." And the official Weather Prophet, taking no pity on the sweltering mass of humanity that waded around yesterday when the thermometer hit 95.2 in the shade (if you could find any) predicts it will be "fine and hot."

Five days hence it will be Li-ch'iu, the Beginning of Autumn, and a month from tomorrow it will be Ch'u-shu, "Stopping of Heat."

In the meantime fans and long cold drinks are quite apropos.

"PORKLESS DAYS" BEGIN; BUTCHERS GO ON STRIKE

Walkout As Protest Against
New Taxes; May Spread
Here

(Reuter's Service)

Many Chinese residing in the districts of Chapel, Nantao and other suburbs of Shanghai are going through the motions of "porkless days" as a result of the strike of pork butchers and dealers which began on Saturday as a protest against the levy of new taxes being collected by agents from the Kiangsu department of finance.

The taxes have hitherto been collected by a special body of collectors composed of representatives of the slaughtering business, and the system has gone on smoothly without a hitch. Sometime ago the collectors were called upon to increase the tariff of the taxes, and they declined on the ground that existing taxes are heavy enough and that any attempt to increase them could not be successfully attempted by a group of unofficial collectors. In view of this declaration, a special bureau was created to look after the collection of the additional taxes. It is suspected that two men, Huang Yu-ken and Tang Li-cheng are behind the whole project in an effort to secure the monopoly of the taxes.

The strike is called for one week and there has been no disorder of any kind so far. The Magistrate of the City has been approached by delegates of the butchers and pork-sellers' guild and undertakes to give a satisfactory reply in three days after taking up the matter with the provincial authorities. The first twenty days of the sixth moon (ending August 2) are devoted to a vegetarian diet and so the effect of the strike is not felt so acutely as it would be otherwise. But the boarding houses and restaurants which find pork indispensable have had to make their purchases in the markets of the Settlement where the butchers have had a booming business, especially those at the boundaries of the Settlement.

The pork interests of the Settlement and the French Concession are anticipating a strike to show sympathy for the traders under the jurisdiction of the Chinese authorities.

DR. KOO TAKES OVER FOREIGN OFFICE, PEKING RESTS EASIER

China At Last Has

PLEASES ALL

Hopes To Stop Talk Of International Intervention

Exclusive Dispatch To
THE CHINA PRESS

Peking, July 23.—Dr. Wellington Koo, former Chinese Ambassador to the United States and Great Britain, today assumed office as Minister of Foreign Affairs, giving China the first legitimate head of the government since the flight of President Li to Tientsin.

"Fully realizing China's international standing and greatly affected by the reports published in the foreign press regarding the international control of railways, the reorganization of foreign loans, the protection of the life and property of their nationals by the Powers themselves and the talk of cancellation of the resolutions adopted at the Washington Conference, even though thus far none of these things have materialized, has led me to accept office," Dr. Koo said to Chinese reporters immediately after his assumption of office.

THE SILVER LINING

Dr. Koo did not give out an official statement, but THE CHINA PRESS correspondent has been authorized to quote his views on the present situation.

"I believe an immediate rectification of this expressed attitude by the foreign Powers is of greater importance than any of our internal problems," Dr. Koo said. "I sincerely hope that my assumption of office may help to clear up any false impressions. Until I consented to take office China has had no government. Since President Li's resignation, particularly in the sense that no having a Minister of Foreign Affairs in office the foreign envoys have felt embarrassed in presenting diplomatic questions."

"I am sincerely of the belief that China's diplomatic affairs should be placed beyond any party or political strife and no sole aim will be to maintain China's international standing to the best possible advantage."

WELL RECEIVED

The Chinese press and the public at large received the news that Dr. Koo had consented to serve as Foreign Minister with a great deal of satisfaction. Dr. Koo is being praised on all sides. He received a great ovation at noon when he entered the Waichiaoou and was surrounded by friends who expressed fervent hopes that Dr. Koo would be attended by every success in his efforts to extricate China from the present chaotic conditions.

Peking, July 23.—Marshal Tiao Kun issued a circular telegram yesterday, urging the necessity of enacting the Constitution and stating that Parliament is responsible for the enactment of the Constitution. Marshal Tiao further insists in the circular telegram that if once the Constitution was enacted, it should be duly observed and put into effect.

Peking, July 23.—Dr. Wellington Koo assumed office as Foreign Minister at noon today and later received the staff of the Waichiaoou.

This action has vastly changed the political situation, delighting the Chihli Party and others outside the political arena, who predict smoother waters for the Government.

Last week owing to Mr. Wang Keh-min's refusal to accept the portfolio of Finance and the illness of Mr. Kao Ling-wai the two remaining members of the Cabinet lost heart. Admiral Wu Yu-lin left for Tientsin, telegraphically to discuss the situation with General Tiao Jui, but he is reported to have been inclined not to return.

The country was then on the verge of being without a Cabinet

as well as without a President and without a Parliament.

At this critical stage General Tiao Kun sent an urgent message to Dr. Koo urging him to take up the Foreign Office, pointing out that as Foreign Minister he would head the Cabinet and thus practically become Acting President.

Admiral Wu Yu-lin has returned from Tientsin and will attend at the Cabinet office this afternoon.

The Cabinet has despatched General Hsiung Ping-chi to persuade Mr. Wang Kuei-ma to become Finance Minister.

No answer has been received from him but it is generally believed that he will not accept the post. The names of Mr. Fan Fu and Mr. Wang Shih-yuan are now mentioned in connection with this office.

(Reuter's Pacific Service) Peking, July 23.—Dr. Wellington Koo this afternoon conferred with the Vice-Minister of Foreign Affairs on pending questions, especially the payment of diplomats abroad.

The new Foreign Minister is issuing a circular telegram to all the provinces saying that the majority of Members of Parliament urged him to emerge from his retirement. He therefore felt it his duty to undertake the difficult task in order to maintain China's international position. He hopes that the Constitution will soon be completed and unity of the country soon brought about.

(Reuter's Pacific Service) Peking, July 23.—News from various parts of the country indicate that things are not going well for the Chihli Party.

A group of Shenai Members of Parliament are reported to have left Peking for Shanghai. Yesterday several Manchurian Members sailed from Dairen for Shanghai.

Reports from Szechuen state that a brigade stationed at Wanchien is said to have gone over to the Kuomintang side. The Kuomintang troops have also thrown in their lot with Dr. Sun Yat-sen. The Kuomintang troops now besieging Chungking are reported to have entered the suburbs on the left river-bank.

Communication with Chungking is practically cut off. Steamers entering and leaving the port are fired on indiscriminately by troops.

Reports from Honan state that General Tsi Chih-yu, a Kuomintang man, is preparing to oppose General Chao Heng-ti, who has despatched troops from Changsha against General Tsi. But these are proving unreliable and are returning to Changsha. Martial law, which had been withdrawn at that town, has again been proclaimed on account of the threatened civil war.

COCAINE SELLER IS FINED $100 IN THE MIXED COURT

As a result of some efficient detective work by Police Constable Gavan the proprietor of a Chinese chemist shop on North Szechuen Road was haled into the Mixed Court yesterday and paid a $100 fine for selling cocaine.

Constable Gavan stated to the Court that he was in the Astor Bar on May 25 when several sailors were there. A coolie entered and made a signal to the sailors and one of them responded by saying "yes," and following the Chinese outside. He returned and the witness asked him whether he had "got it." The man muttered something about the coolie wanting $3. The witness then went outside and the coolie signalled to him. He nodded in assent and got into a ricksha and was taken to North Szechuen Road and into a shop called the "Cathay Medical Society." A man in the shop inquired what he wanted and he made the same sign the coolie had used, whereupon he was taken into a back room and was asked how much he wished to buy. He replied "about a dollar's worth" and was given a small phial half-full of cocaine.

An analysis of the drug was produced and the defendant was called upon to testify. He said that it was a relic of the shop to sell cocaine in small quantities—$1 or $2 worth—upon presentation of a doctor's bill or to doctors or dentists.

Assessor Whitmore and Magistrate Li ordered a fine of $100 and, upon application of Detective Sergeant Dinkler, ordered the accused to turn over to the police his stock of cocaine and heroin.

JAPAN'S TENNIS CHAMPIONS TO PLAY HERE

Tournament With Local Racquet Wielders On July 30

The Japanese tennis team that won the Far Eastern championship at the recent Olympic Games in Osaka is to appear here in a series of matches, beginning Monday, July 30 and continuing Tuesday, Wednesday and Saturday following. The Japanese will be opposed by the best local talent that can be mustered by the Shanghai Lawn Tennis Association, which is managing the tournament.

The tournament will be played on the new courts of the Shanghai Association, at the Hotel Majestic, on Bubbling Well Road. There will be two matches daily, beginning at 4.30. Large and comfortable stands to accommodate 2,000 persons will be erected.

Tickets for the series of four days have been issued at $3 and will be on sale at all Clubs. Single admission on any day will be $1.

Tickets also may be obtained from Mr. N. B. Ramsey, 12 A. Peking Road, Mr. J. L. Wade, Probst Hanbury and Company, 21 Jinkee Road, Mr. J. Elmore, McBain Building on The Bund and Mr. J. E. Doyle, Shanghai Mercantile Printing Company, 9 B. Kiangse Road.

The best tennis talent in Shanghai will be called upon to meet the visiting Japanese champions, but with Mr. Mansel-Smith off his game, Mr. Sheldon away in the United States and Mr. Farbury out of Shanghai in Mukden the choice of a team is centering upon Messrs. W. P. Roberts of St. John's University who won last year's doubles championship with Mr. Dawson; Mr. John L. Wade who was runner-up last year in both singles and doubles; Mr. Tounsal star player of The French Club; Mr. John Elmore and Mr. R. Carnavaro.

The Japanese stars, who are now in Tientsin are Messrs. Toba of Kobe Commercial University, Uekawa, Abe and Kawazuma. The first named is the singles champion of Japan and won the singles championship at the Olympic Games at Osaka this spring.

It is understood that Messrs. Toba and Uekawa will be paired in the opening play in the doubles as will also Messrs. Abe and Kawazuma.

The forthcoming visit of the Japanese Olympic stars marks the second occasion that Japan has sent a tennis team here to compete, the former occasion having taken place two years ago when a team came here from Keio University.

Gov. Chang Denies He Knows Where Kearney Is

(Continued from Page 1) tions from the board of directors and the fact that Walduck's notice appeared in the press prior to the filing of the petition did not deprive Walduck of the power given to him through the attorney of the company by the owner of the company.

Mr. Schuhl maintained that there should be three directors and at the time the petition was filed there were three directors acting on behalf of the corporation. There was no meeting of any kind and there was no resolution to take this company into bankruptcy. When the petition was filed v. Schuhl had already notified the public by advertisements that he was no longer connected with the company.

Judge Franklin said that he believed that the articles of association of The Kearney Company provided that the directors had to be stockholders. He knew of no other stockholder but Kearney.

Mr. Schuhl maintained that there would have to be three directors in the company, to which Judge Franklin replied that the articles of association showed that there were four incorporators, three of whom were missionaries. The company was incorporated in November and he in the early part of January they had decided to disagree, and sold their interests to Kearney. No stock had been issued, although Kearney promised to issue some stock to some persons.

The case was taken under advisement. Mr. Schuhl also moved for judgment in the suit brought against The Kearney, Inc. by George A. Mayer to recover the sum of $2,857 before Judge Lobingier yesterday.

Judge Franklin asked that the claim be kept pending till the decision in the bankruptcy petition was given. If the bankruptcy petition held, then this suit would fail. He submitted that an adjournment would not prejudice the plaintiff. Kearney had been adjudicated bankrupt.

Judge Lobingier said he would hear the case, and evidence was given by the plaintiff showing that the amount was still owing. The case was then also taken under advisement.

The Japanese stars, who are now in Tientsin are Messrs. Toba of Kobe Commercial University, Uekawa, Abe and Kawazuma. The first named is the singles champion of Japan and won the singles championship at the Olympic Games at Osaka this spring.

It is understood that Messrs. Toba and Uekawa will be paired in the opening play in the doubles as will also Messrs. Abe and Kawazuma.

Anything may happen in three days. The telegraph wires between Peking, Loyang and Pao-tung are being kept at white heat with rumors of "official" messages, and what the outcome will be, no one, except perhaps the aforementioned Benevolent Dictator, knows, and as previously stated he refuses to prophesy.

A son was born to Dr. Wellington and Mrs. Koo yesterday. We extend our sincere congratulations to the proud mother and father, and venture to hope that Dr. Koo may now be able to give his undivided attention to the importunities of his fellow countrymen to accept the portfolio of the Minister of Foreign Affairs.

Marital Tiao Kun wired a long congratulatory message to Dr. Koo last night and brought him most earnestly to reconsider his decision. Intimate friends of Dr. Koo intimated that it was quite possible the latter would change his mind, especially since he had received the indirect assurances that the former Minister of Finance Mr. Loh would not be subjected to a third trial having been acquitted twice previously. Mr. Kao Ling-wei the Minister of the Interior also called on Dr. Koo yesterday and added his pleas to those of Marshal Tiao. Following the latter interview, the rumor spread that Dr. Koo had decided to assume office on next Monday, but it is thought that it is highly unlikely in view of the unsettled condition of the Ministry of Finance.

(Reuter's Service)

Tokio, July 23.—A Moscow deputation of the Interior denounced the Bolshevik organization established by the Moscow Government in Bulgaria, which, he said, the late Agrarian Government had fostered. He declared that the agents of this organization had committed all kinds of crimes, that they were implicated in many assassinations in Bulgaria, and that they had incited Communists to revolt. Consequently the Bolshevik agents had been arrested and would be requested to leave Bulgaria via Varna.

The Government has invited the Russian Red Cross Mission to leave Bulgaria and asked Dr. Nansen to appoint a commission to carry on the work of repatriating Russian refugees in Bulgaria, who desire to return home. It is semi-officially stated that a Bolshevik agent of the Russian Red Cross Mission had threatened political adversaries with death.

She also testified that Colt frequently struck her. Mr. and Mrs. Colt have three children. 'Statues' Ballet To Be Put On Again At The Del Monte

In response to numerous requests the Del Monte has consented to put on the Living Statues ballet again, starting tomorrow night. When this ballet was on the bill a week ago, with only twelve girls, it made a great hit with Del Monte patrons, and now with four more girls in the "line up" it will be much more striking than before.

In addition to the four new girls, the ballet this time will be much more finished than before. Ballet Master Demetarsky has figured out a lot of new poses and gyrations for the girls, and in rehearsals this week he has obtained some very unique effects.

In addition to the ballet there will be special dancing numbers. All in all, it's another big week at Del Monte.

hope that no one will eventually regret having neglected France's warnings.

A telegram from Madrid says that in spite of the banks strike the eight credit establishments which the strikers declared that wished to be boycotted are still open to the public and are being operated by agents not under the boycott. The President of the General Workers' Corporation declared that if the banks conflict is not settled to the satisfaction of the strikers in a week, the trouble will become acute.

It is reported from Rome that German-Russian Bolshevik propaganda is spreading in Italy. The police has seized correspondence. The baggage of two Russian subjects, which was seized at Naples, constitutes particularly interesting evidence.

The Russian Soviet Embassy in Berlin denies the report that the signature of the Straits Convention by the Soviet Government will be the outcome of a clause of a secret treaty between Britain and Russia concluded recently.

Calm has been restored at Berlin. Trouble has arisen in Upper Silesia owing to the high cost of living.

The Passing Of The Visiting Card

Printers and stationers are bemoaning the passing of the visiting card, which, in all its ramifications, used to earn them small fortunes, writes Mr. Bassett Digby in the Manchester Guardian. To what heights of foolish affection the visiting card and its ritual: arose in the nineties, and even later, when ignorance or disregard of "card etiquette" was social death and a married woman, would as soon forget to put on her boots for a walk as to call on a friend without leaving her husband's card. Nowadays, to the horror of those tradesmen who are financially interested, we pop in and out of our friends' houses with a blissful disregard of dropping sheets of pasteboard into the brass plate on the hall table as we take our departure. Picture what it used to cost a woman with a husband and several daughters to leave a handful of cards once or twice a day! The absurdity of it all!

Cards originated about 170 years ago, when messages and invitations were scribbled on the back of playing cards. At first one simply wrote one's name on the back of a playing card and handed it to one's friend's servant when calling. This custom, which arose in Paris, was called paying "visites en blanc."

Then playing cards came to be considered "low" and went out of vogue. In their stead were evolved cards illustrated with engravings of ruins, landscapes, towers, and so forth. Nobody had enough sense of humor, apparently, to be amused at some doddling old buck of the Regency handing out cards illustrated by a ruin! One bought them in packs, consisting of assorted views. The next development was to have your name engraved on the card, instead of writing it. Cards thereupon became individual, and everyone had his or her special design. That of the famous sculptor Canova bore an engraving of a rough-hewn block of marble, and the card of Sir Joshua Reynolds was designed by no less a personage than Barlow.

THE DISCREET CALLER
Amusing were the cards of those days. Lord Algernon Percy used to introduce himself with an Egyptian desert scene teeming with pyramids, in the foreground of which lay a great sphinx, couchant, its plinth adorned with that noble's name. Could there be a discreet way of announcing one's discretion and paving the way to piquant titbits of scandal? A Mrs. Hampden, member of that famous family, was another distributor of the sphinx card. The Dowager Duchess of Leeds, early in the reign of George III., sent in to her friends a piece of pasteboard that depicted a Chinaman with a streaming pigtail leaning over a fence pointing to her name engraved on it. The Duchess of Portland and Ancester and Lady Mary Bertie, twenty years later, had cards that were merely names embossed with a punch on bits of coarse cardboard like "stiffeners" in a packet of chocolate.

If ever a man was "all things to all men" it was the Earl Cowper of the 1780's. His cards were of all sizes and superscriptions. I have seen some of them. There was for instance, "Earl Cowper" inside a ribbon and garland. There was "Milord Nassau Clavering-Cowper." There was "Milord Cowper," in red ink, in a red-lined oblong, with a deep border of primrose, a tiny oval cameo seal in the corner, ringed with real beaten gold. But, grandest of all, there was a card announcing "Lord Prince de Cowper," on a ribbon in the mouth of a fierce-eyed eagle on the wing; one feels that Daisy Ashford would have approved of that! The only card of his wife I have seen was worded "La Princesse Cowper," on a sort of sombre matchbox label.

The favorite card of many society people displayed the name on a milestone under a roadside bush, a couple of bewigged and Johnsonian passers-by pausing to study it. Another design in general demand crowded into the corners of a small rectangle of pasteboard, the Colosseum, Remains and Remains being suckled by the wolf, a column, a vase, a temple portico, and other Roman "props." Sir Joshua Banks struck out for originality with a card consisting of a small map of Iceland, in green, with red lines of latitude and longitude.

Prisoners Of Hope

BY PUTNAM WEALE

Progress can only come from discontent, and discontent cannot be present unless great wrongs have been perpetrated, normal wrongs which hurt the soul of a people. If the Chinese people at this juncture were given clear guidance, the reason that is within them would react to that guidance and bring great and definite changes. So far, however, there is no indication on the foreign side of anything resembling such a lead. Yet constructive action is desperately needed. The indignities which were suffered in Peking in June have hurt foreign diplomacy just as much as the Chinese nation itself—possibly more so since the foreign factor, being essentially stronger than the Chinese factor, must suffer in strict ratio to its strength. "When you have taken the idol," wrote Liang Chi-chiao in one of his famous passages, and cast it into a muddy pool and left it there, it is useless to fish it out and set it up again and call upon the people to bow down and worship."

One of the amazing and disconcerting things in China today is that foreign diplomacy appears so little to understand this truth which is written in letters of fire. Its own position is largely gone. The chasing away of President Li Yuan-hung, who though weak was well-intentioned and honest, by barefaced intimidation on the part of men in uniform, was really a destruction of the sanctions on which diplomatic intercourse rests—those postulates which have grown up slowly and painfully during four hundred years of practice. It would have been better indeed if the late King Edward, who was one of the world's great diplomatists, when he justified the rupture of British diplomatic relations with Serbia after the heartless murder of King Alexander and his consort in 1903. What would a wise man, such as this old King, with his inherited knowledge of statecraft, joined to a natural aptitude, have given as his verdict of our latest debacle?

Many observers believe that the office of President has virtually ceased to exist in China. It has been tried for ten years and found wanting. It has never corresponded to the basic fact in Chinese life which can be summed up in one word—devolution—i.e. the passing from one person to another. The Imperial rule, purely formal and priestly in its attributes, was ironed out of existence by the modern life which had grown up from ever-growing communication and trade with the West; and the attempt to revive the office with a coating of democracy and a military title (for that is what Ta Tsung-tsun or President stands for) was in essence retrograde, and absurd. That the highest unit after the province in China can only be the geographical region e.g. North-Eastern China (Manchuria), North China, Central China, Western China, Eastern China and South

Western China, makes it more than probable that a federation of geographical zones such as Soviet Russia has just accomplished with a small Administrative Council for the headship.

Perhaps it is in accordance with the divine order of things that to aid and foster this evolution, there should have been on the foreign as well as the Chinese side such sloth and inefficiency and inability to grapple with the great cluster of facts which fill the labyrinths of the capital yet make of Peking an aching void as has been evident in these recent calamitous weeks.

Gallopers Take Another From Japanese, 6 To 1

Herby Gallop, if he keeps on at the present rate, will have those ball tossers of his to feed up on Sukiyaki that by the time the Peking Marines get here the quick change from Japanese chow to army beans will make them all sick. Herby was best at another chop stick party Sunday, his gang showing the usual lack of table manners by gobbling everything in sight. The score was 6 to 1.

Like the so-called game Saturday there wasn't much to Sunday's combat, except that it was useful to the Gallopers for betting average purposes, the boys nicking the Japanese pitcher for a total of ten blow.

At Taylor got a life in the first when two of the Japanese staged an Alphonse and Gaston act over his pop up. He stole second and scored, when Scotty's drive got past the second sacker. Jaw was cut trying to advance on the misplay.

The Japanese got one in the sixth, thanks to a muff by Howland at third. Tajiri, who profited by this muff, stole second and went to third on an out. The next batter hit one at Scotty, who touched first and heaved to second. That is, he meant to heave to second. As a matter of fact he heaved to the Cricket club, Tajiri scoring.

Our gang scored three in the half, due to hits and a sacrifice and a couple of Japanese bobbles. Thatch got on via the single route. Taylor sacrificed him and Scotty walked. Pomeck then drove a high fly to left, Thatch scoring after.

the catch. Bruce then drove one through the Japanese third sacker. Scott and Smith scoring and Bruce stopping at third, where he died. That put 't on ice.

RECS BOWLERS WIN IN WALLACE CUP COMPETITION

Club Victor By Margin Of 32
Points; Conditions
Of Match

The annual inter-club lawn bowls competition for the Wallace Cup took place Saturday afternoon, and the Recreation Club won by a margin of 32 points over their opponents, whereas the Yangtszepoo Club who were next in order of merit only had a lead of 7 points, the other two clubs being minus quantities.

The conditions of this competition are not fully understood by lawn bowlers themselves. The cup goes to the club that beats its opponents by the largest number of points, whilst spoons are awarded to the particular rink that has the largest margin over its opponents.

The winners of the spoons were Messrs. G. H. Ackerman, A. Eek, J. E. Wheeler and T. Veitch who beat Mr. J. Ross Young's rink by the remarkable score of 38 to 9.

The result of the competition was announced at the Lawn Bowls Club by Mr. J. B. Ferrier who called for cheers for the Recreation Club coupled with the name of Mr. Ackerman skip of the team that won the spoons. The Wallace Cup thus passes from the hands of the S. L. B. C. to the Recs.

Stiff Breeze Favors Yachts In Fifth Race

The Shanghai Yacht Club held its fifth ordinary race Saturday when five boats raced over a course of twelve miles. A strong south-east breeze was blowing at 1:30 when the yachts faced the starter, the strength of the wind being "force four."

The Haikuan and Ella jumped to an early lead while the Violet was second with the Oistos and the Monsoon bringing up the rear. The boats were all bunched together when they reached the Pootung Point and they were all racing for the windward position.

The Oistos then came to the front while the Ella and Violet were side by side and the Haikuan was last.

After rounding the Tungchow buoy all boats staged a speedy race for home with the Violet and Oistos in the lead but finally the Violet nosed out Oistos who finished second. The Haikuan finished third but after allowing for handicaps Haikuan was placed first.

Japanese Kimonos

Is Western Garb Preferable?

BY ALFRED E. PIERCE
(For The S.C.M. Post)

Tokio: Must Japanese women say "Goodbye" to the seductive folds of the easy kimono and adopt instead the clinging and tight draperies of the West? Here is a knotty problem, a question that should have been put to the Sphinx, as the reply sought from some oracle blessed with more than mortal knowledge. The fascination that wreathes itself around women—and, of course, the different "things" that a woman chooses to wear—has always attracted mere man-like the flame of a candle, attracts the moth, and so it is not surprising that in the discussion as to whether Japanese women should cast away the flowing kimono with its wealth of anecdotal associations and its fantastic, though pleasant, color schemes, not merely women but also men, some of them bespectacled editors of papers with immense circulations, should be drawn into the controversial fray.

The prime use of dress by women, if Ovid is any criterion to go by, seems to have been for the purpose of captivating the male, just as Nature has gifted the lower animals of the female species with the handsomest of skin-stripes and the most lurid of fur. The Roman poet, when he said "Utatur vestis amore tuum" (Let him be inflamed by your dress) was talking not merely for his generation, but also for posterity. One can well claim that he, many centuries ago, was unconsciously taking a part in the burning question agitating certain circles in Nippon to-day—Must this comfortable, easy-fitting kimono give way to the creations of Paris, London or New York?

Foreigners have been drawn into the mazes of the argument. Mrs. F.A.E. Cabell, President of the Y.W.C.A., voicing the consensus of opinion among foreign women in Japan, declares that the Japanese ladies should not decidedly scrap the kimono for western clothes because, she says, they are not fitted either physically or temperamentally to carry them properly, and that unless the garments are turned out by the best foreign tailors, they become a travesty. Their own dress, she insists, is so picturesque and fits so beautifully into the landscape that it would be a great pity if Japanese women decided definitely to cast it aside, for with the kimono goes a great deal of the with Japan.

FOR EUROPEAN DRESS
There is, however, a class of Japanese girls—and these are largely the New Women of Japan—who believe that the curtain must be rung down on the flowing, trailing kimono and that it should make way for the less cumbersome and more utilitarian Occidental garment. One of them, Miss Hana Hihimoto (literally, Miss Original Flower Doll) writes to a local paper declaring that the subject of whether Japanese women should change their dress or not must be considered from every angle, because the Japanese mode of dressing vitally affects the economy of the home. She argues that, viewing the matter from an artistic or sentimental standpoint alone is insufficient, and comes out firmly in favor of Western clothes. Her reasons for effecting a change are threefold:

First, because foreign clothes are far more economical than the Japanese kimono which, she says, costs four times as much as foreign dress.

Second, because it is far lighter and healthier than the kimono.

which must be worn with an obi (broad Japanese sash) the weight of which "is far beyond the imagination of foreign ladies."

The third reason advanced by Miss Original Flower Doll is a debatable one. She declares that when a Japanese girl put on foreign clothes, "it at once affects our minds. From my own experience, she continues, "I can positively state that when one is in Occidental clothes, he or she feels more active and fitter for work, and that is the reason why our men have adopted Western clothes. We women," she indignantly winds up, "are no exception to this rule."

Tailors and clothiers may insist that clothes make the man—or the woman, but the assertion that the brain power is stimulated further or the faculties of the mind become clearer in proportion to the nature of the garment worn, seems rather far-fetched. Some time ago, a Tokio school-master conducted something akin to a campaign for scrapping the kimono in favor of western clothes and was met with the argument that this would result in a corresponding change of mind in the girls. He laughed the contention to scorn and declared that soldiers of different lands are clothed in different ways, but that, none the less, they are good soldiers, loyal not to their dress, but to the ideals their country embraces.

EDITORIAL VIEWS
Refusing to advocate the use of foreign dress for Japanese women, Mr. Hiroto Sugimura, editor of the Tokio Asahi, one of the most powerful journals in Japan, minces no words in giving his reasons for his action. In effect, he says that women are

Fond of dress and change and praise
Such is a woman in her ways. He doesn't mind the little tots or maidens yet in their teens wearing European or any clothes, provided the garment is decent and seemly, but for grown-up women—No. "Those who have passed the Spring time of life and have lost their bloom ought not to wear European clothes," he writes. "Western clothes do not fit well on the Japanese women's body and is an eyesore, while the wearers of ill-fitting or ill-looking clothes invite scorn from others." Mr. Sugimura even goes so far as to express a doubt as to whether the Court ladies should accept in toto the styles and modes of America and Europe.

The Imperial Family is seldom be individual. It would be worth seen in public except in Occidental-crying anyway."

While considering the desires of the ladies of Japan to clothe their forms in garments other than those which have been handed down through the centuries, it is well to bear in mind the fact that the dictates of fashion, or what passes as fashion in this fickle and changing age, have a great deal to do with the impulse actuating maidens in their teens to coax Pater Pampinus into allowing them to wear "foreign clothes." Japan is today in the throes of a foreign craze, and foreign clothes are regarded as a mode. Japanese etiquette strictly forbids ridiculing the dress of another, thereby telling the world that she is "progressive" even if the clothes do not suit her—a fact which women the world over are often liable to be blissfully ignorant of—she sees no reason why she should invite scorn. In fact, a Japanese young lady dressed in "foreign clothes" is an object of envy amongst those of her less fortunate sisters whose parents will not countenance the new fad. A walk in the park any evening will prove this beyond a doubt when the lucky few in European clothes are the cynosure of all women encased in the kimono.

Why should Japanese girls wear either so-called "foreign clothes" or their own garments, which they do not seem to pine for? Why should they not break new ground in the vast world and devise something new? It is an American girl who is asking the question. Wonderful strides in many directions have been made in Japan, she argues, and the Japanese have shown remarkable aptitude to absorb the culture of other peoples so why should the women not strike out in a new direction and endeavor to achieve something unique and distinctive in the field of dress? "Japanese garments are good," writes this maid from the land of the Stars and Stripes, "but they are too much the same. Foreign garments have some points in their favor, but they are often expensive and uncomfortable. Let the women of Japan strike out on new lines. Surely, it will be possible to devise something which will be inexpensive and comfortable, and at the same time, which will still

Territorial Rights

It should be clearly understood that foreigners in China possessing extraterritorial rights have no idea whatever of consenting to be deprived of them. The Washington Conference in agreeing to the appointment of a commission to inquire into the matter did so on the supposition that inquiry could do no harm. It was one of the many mistaken decisions of that assembly. The appointment of such a commission can do no possible good; it can do nothing but harm. The foreign Powers are at present concerned to defend the position and the safety of their nationals in this country. It is evident to everyone that the anti-foreign spirit in China is reviving, and it is something more than a coincidence that its revival dates from the time of the Washington conference, where China was elevated to a position of dignity and honor which she is in no way able to fulfil. Anything which calls in question the extraterritorial position of foreigners in China is calculated further to strengthen the foreigner's position. Who the influential persons may be who are quoted by the Daily Telegraph as desiring to see the Commission at work, it is difficult to surmise. At the present stage, when corruption and incapacity have reached their zenith in China, it is no time to discuss any limitation of foreigners' rights, but to insist on their effective maintenance. The Washington resolutions on extraterritoriality should be wiped out.—N. C. D. M.

How Mark Twain Set The Stage

BY ARTHUR MAURICE

What is announced as "the final and authentic collection of the famous speeches" of Mark Twain has just been published by Harper and Brothers, prefaced, naturally, by an appreciation by W. D. Howells and an introduction by Albert Bigelow Paine. It is a volume not merely to be recommended but actually to be forced into the hands of any one who contemplates or pines in waiting after dinner oratory upon his fellow men. In that way many of the little unnecessary harshnesses of life might be mitigated. For the book shows that, no matter how great the natural gift, the only way to certain success as an after dinner speaker lies in the taking of infinite pains.

It was by a careful setting of the stage, an elaborate and studied system of rehearsal and preparation, that Mark Twain was able to leave upon the generation that listened to him the impression of a delightful and quick witted spontaneity. To the uninitiated it seemed like inspiration. That happy carrying on of the utterance of a preceding speaker, introduced by the familiar "What Mr. So and So has said," reminds me, as an introduction which Mark Twain once whimsically announced that he intended to patent, gave the impression of being the invention of the moment. In reality it was the studied art of the actor superimposed upon the art of the speaker, the spontaneity born of the closet, where he had mused his words to an imagined audience.

In that closet Mark Twain had studied every word and syllable and memorized them by a system of mnemonics peculiar to himself, consisting of an arbitrary arrangement of things on a table—knives, forks, salt cellars, inkstands, pens, boxes, or whatever was at hand—which stood for points and clauses and climaxes and were at once indelible dictation and constant suggestion. He studied every tone and every gesture and he forecast the result with the real audience from its faint with that imagined audience.

KNEW WHEN TO STOP

"Therefore," wrote Mr. Howells, "it was beautiful to see and to hear him; he rejoiced in the pleasure he gave and the blows of surprise he dealt; and because he had his mind in mind he knew when to stop."

It was a secret that Mark Twain himself was always ready and eager to share with the world. In this he was possibly not entirely altruistic. Perhaps he hoped his candor might mitigate his own sufferings when listening to the long and long winded utterances of other men. In all events, in 1894, he advocated speech making reform, acknowledging that he, like many another well intentioned man, had made too many speeches, and picturing before him and about him the familiar faces of many poor, sorrowing fellow sufferers, victims of the passion for speech making—"poor, sad eyed brothers in affliction, who, fast in the grip of this fell, degrading, demoralizing vice, have grown weak with struggling, as the years drifted by, and at last have all but given up hope."

Then he told of the real art—the best and most telling speech is not the actual impromptu one, but the counterfeited one, that speech is most worth listening to which has carefully been prepared in private and tried on a plaster cast, or an empty chair, or any other appropriate object that will keep quiet until the speaker has got his matter and his delivery limbered up so that they will seem impromptu to an audience. The expert knows that.

"A touch of indifferent grammar here and there, and here and there, apparently at random, has a good effect—often restores the confidence of a suspicious audience. It arranges these errors in private for a really random error wouldn't do any good; it would be sure to fall in the wrong place. The clever leaves blanks here and there—leaves them where genuine impromptu remarks can be dropped in a sort that will add to the natural aspect of the speech with PICTURES ACTUAL DELIVERY."

Then Mark Twain went on to picture the actual delivery. "Aware that the hour is late, Mr. Chairman, it was my intention to abide by a purpose which I framed in the beginning of the evening—to simply rise (was that split infinitive one of the intentional touches of indifferent grammar?) and return my duty and thanks, in case I should be called upon, and then make way for men more able and who have come with something to say. But, sir, I was so struck by Gen. Smith's remark concerning the proneness of evil to fly upward, that, etc., etc., etc., and before you know it he has slidden smoothly along on his compliment to the General, and out of it, and into his set speech, and you can't tell, to save you, where it was not when it was that he made the connection.

"And that man will soar along in the most beautiful way, on the wings of a practiced memory, heaving in a little decayed grammar here, and a little wise tautology there, and a little neatly counterfeited embarrassment yonder and a little finely acted stumbling and stammering for a word, rejecting this word and that and finally getting the right one. . . . And yet that man has been practicing that afterthought and that attitude for a week."

But according to Albert Bigelow Paine it was only in the early days that Mark Twain found it always necessary to be elaborate in the preliminary setting of the stage. Later, at times, he trusted himself to speak without any special preparation on notes, confident of picking up an idea from the toastmaster's introduction or from some previous speaker, usually asking to be placed third on the list. But if the occasion was an important one he wrote his speech and rehearsed it in the old way.

PERFECTED HIS MANNER

His manner of delivery did not change with the years except to become more finished and to seem less so, for it was his naturalness, his apparent lack of all art that was his greatest charm. One of those who attended his earliest lectures spoke of his exaggerated drawl of that day, his habit of loosely lounging about the stage, his apparent indifference to the audience.

Mr. Paine, in collecting these speeches, speaks of them as being rather loosely "separated into three periods: the first division beginning with his San Francisco lecture (The Sandwich Islands, Mark Twain's first lecture. Originally delivered at Maguire's Academy of Music, San Francisco, October 2, 1866, and many times repeated), continuing through those years when his conquest of the world of letters had not yet lost its novelty, when his blood was quick, when the gods were still kind, and his words in the main a bit of good natured foolery. The middle period covers those years when the affairs of men and nations began to make a larger appeal. . . . The final group is of those later years when, full of honors yet saddened by bereavement and the uncertainty of life's adventures, he had become the philosopher and sage whose voice was sought on every public question, whose humor was more gentle, whose judgments had become mellowed and were all the more welcome for that reason."

A good many persons hold to the opinion that Mark Twain reached his high water mark as a speaker in the Whittier Birthday speech in Boston in 1877, the speech which so offended the demigods of Boston, and which brought to Mark only shame and a sense of abasement out of keeping with his nature. Mr. Paine considers as perhaps the most perfect examples of his after-dinner art the conclusion of the Seventieth Birthday address, and of the Liverpool speech, which in this volume will be found in the Lotus Club speech, delivered January 11, 1903.

To the former there is a fine, rich Thackerayan flavor: "Your invitation honors me, and pleases me because you still keep me in your remembrance, but I am seventy; twenty, and would settle in the chimney corner, and smoke my pipe, and read my book, and take my rest, wishing you well in all affection, and that when you in your turn shall arrive at pier No. 70 you may step aboard your waiting ship with a reconciled spirit, and lay your course toward the setting sun with a contented heart."

The New Foreign Minister

Dr. V. K. Wellington Koo's
assumption of the post of Foreign Minister and his announcement in that connection,
carried in an exclusive despatch
to THE CHINA PRESS today, comes
as the first ray of hope to break
from the murky political atmosphere at Peking in many months.

There is no available man more
suited to take the helm in the Waichiao at the present time.
And, as Dr. Koo points out, there is no office of the Chinese government which calls more insistently
for fulfillment at this stage.

Chiefly owing to the defection of
the Ministry of Foreign Affairs China has been cut off from communication with the foreign
powers at a time when exchange
of opinion and information were
and are of the utmost importance
to all concerned. From his statement to Peking newspapermen it is to be gathered that Dr. Koo is fully alive to the problems he is facing. That he is justified in feeling some temerity about the
tasking of those problems, no
one will question in the face of conditions in the government and country at this time. But he comes to the post with the experience gained in the most important diplomatic circles and
with the knowledge that he will
be dealing with governments and
diplomats with whom he is well acquainted.

To rehabilitate
China's foreign standing is a task that might well give the
shrewdest and most enthusiastic
patriot pause, but the new Minister of Foreign Affairs may rest assured that he will have the
earnest appreciation and the
sympathy of all foreign wishers
for China's well in his efforts.

As Minister to Washington and later to the Court of St. James, as a member of the Paris Peace Conference and as China's representative on the Council of the League of Nations, Dr. Koo has qualifications for office which it will be difficult to center in one other man. It is to be hoped that he will be given that assistance
in Peking which may enable him
to accomplish the things for which he is fitted and which he has undertaken—undertaken in a spirit which should stand as an example to China's present and future officialdom.

The interesting announcement
is made by the Smithsonian Institute, of Washington, D. C., that if the service rendered these days
by electricity and steam for citizens of the United States was performed entirely by hand power,
it would require thirty slaves for
every person in the country.

Sixteen uses for an electric fan!
That's the number thus far discovered. The list starts with the function of drying frosting on cakes. It concludes with that of creating a draft for the furnace.

Keeping cool and keeping warm
are, of course, included. Sounds
paradoxical, but instead it's actual.

A little mah jongg now and
then is apt to break the best
of men.

If Winter only would come!

MASTER TENG-TU

by Sung Yu (Third century, B. C.)

One day when the chamberlain,
Master Teng-Tu, was in attendance at the Palace he warned
the King against Sung Yu, saying:
"Yu is a man of handsome
features and calm bearing and his tongue is prompt with subtle sentences. Moreover, his character is licentious. I would submit that your Majesty is ill advised in allowing him to follow you
into the Queen's apartments."

The King repeated Teng-Tu's
words to Sung Yu. Yu replied:
"My beauty of face and calmness
of bearing were given me by Heaven. Subtlety of speech I learned from my teachers. As for my character, I deny that it is licentious."

The King said: "Can you substantiate your statement that you are not licentious? If you cannot, you must leave the court."

Sung Yu said: "Of all the women in the world, the most beautiful are the women of the land of Ch'u. And in all the land
of Ch'u there are none like the women in my own village. And in my own village there are none
that can be compared with the little girl next door.

"The girl next door would be too tall if an inch were added to her height, and too short if an inch were taken away. Another
grain of powder would make her
too pale; another touch of rouge
would make her too red. Her eye-brows are like the plumage
of the kingfisher, her flesh is like snow. Her waist is like a roll
of new silk, her teeth are like little shells. A single of her smiles
would perturb the whole city of Shanghai and derange the suburb
of Pootung. For three years this lady has been climbing the garden
wall and peeping at me, yet I have never succumbed."

Sung Yu was not dismissed
from the court.

or less, but mostly more, was tripping the light fantastic on the roof of the Carlton (which opened at last in spite of the promise that it would) when
some one inquired if it were
safe to have such a monstrosity
in human flesh gallivanting
around on the roof. Pa gently
chided the someone for their grossness of speech. "But she
is a lollipoplooser," they ejac-
ulated "Well," Pa admitted,
the nature of everything is best
seen in a wee bit smaller portion."

Harding's Appeal For A World Court

President Harding made the following appeal for the entry
of the United States into the World Court in the speech he delivered at St. Louis while crossing the country on his way
to Alaska:

The endless problems of foreign relations are relatively little revealed to the world. Most frequently they are more readily adjusted because they are not revealed, though it is fair to assure you that nothing of vital importance is unduly hidden from the people for whom the Government speaks. Week by week, day by day, often hour by hour, there
are problems in our international relations which are no more to be avoided than the vital questions of our own relationships at home. The citizen who believes in aloofness is blind to inescapable
obligations and insensitive to the twentieth century world order and unmindful of our commercial
interdependence, about which
the modern business fabric has come to be woven.

QUOTES WASHINGTON

And we have cultivated peace,
not academically and passively
merely, but in practical ways and by active endeavors. Even at Washington appended his signature
to his most memorable and
far-reaching declaration, a new principle had been written into
the treaty of peace between Great Britain and the United States.
had been sustained by the Congress at his resolute insistence,
and was in full force and effect.

That principle was arbitration, which was not only employed successfully at the time, but became from that moment an established policy of the Republic.
from which, to this day, there
has been no departure.

Thus, clearly, by the method
already operative in substituting
reason for prejudice, law for ob-
duracy, and justice for passion.

The Father of His Country bade
us, no less than his contemporaries,
not merely to countenance and
uphold, but actively to cultivate and promote peace. It is
with that high purpose in mind
and at heart, men and women of America, that I advocate participation by the United States in the Permanent Court of International Justice.

TRUE JUDICIAL TRIBUNAL

It is a true judicial tribunal.
Its composition is of the highest order. None better, none freer from selfish, partisan, national
or racial prejudices or influences
could be obtained. That, to the best of my information and believer, is a fact universally admitted and acclaimed. I care not whence
the court came, I insist only
that its integrity, its independence, its complete and continuing
freedom be safeguarded absolutely.

The sole question is whether
the requirements which I have
enumerated as essential to adherence by the United States can be met. My answer is that where there is a unanimous will, a way
can always be found. I am not wedded irrevocably to any particular method. I would not assume for a moment that the re-
adjustment of the existing arrangement which appears to my mind as feasible is the best, much less the only, one. But, such as it is, I submit it, without excess
of detail, as a basis for consideration, discussion, and judgment.

Granting the noteworthy excellence, of which I, for one, am fully convinced, of the court as
now constituted, why not proceed
in the belief that it may be made self-perpetuating? This could be done in one of two ways.

DISPARITY IN VOTING

1—By empowering the court
itself to fill any vacancy arising from the death of a member or
retirement for whatever cause,
without interposition from any
other body.

2—By continuing the existing
authority of the Permanent Court
of Arbitration to nominate and
by transferring the power to election from the council and assembly
of the league to the remaining members of the court of justice.

The disparity in voting as between a unit nation and an aggregated empire, which now maintains in the assembly of the league, to which many object, because of apprehensions which I do not share, would, under this plan, disappear automatically.

Two conditions may be considered indispensable:

First, that the tribunal be so constituted as to appear and to be, in theory and in practice, in form and in substance, beyond
the shadow of doubt, a World
Court and not a League Court.

Second, that the United States
shall occupy a plane of perfect
equality with every other power.

There is no consequential dispute among us concerning the League of Nations. There are yet

"Second, that the United

"Why not proceed in the belief that it (the Court) may be made self-perpetuating?"

"In the face of the overwhelming verdict of 1920,
therefore, the issue of the League of Nations is as dead
as slavery.

"My soul yearns for peace.
My heart is anguished by the

is eager to serve. My passion is for justice over force. My

My mind is fixed."

its earnest advocates, but the
present Administration has said,
repeatedly and decisively, that
the league is not for us. There
admittedly is a league connection with the world court. We cannot hope to get anywhere except in
the frankest understanding of facts.

OVERWHELMING SENTIMENT

The authors of the court protocol, co-operating with a brilliant American leadership, turned to the league organization for the court electorate, to solve a problem in choosing judges heretofore unsolvable. Though I firmly believe we could adhere to the court protocol, with becoming reservation, and be free from every possible obligation to the league.
I would frankly prefer the court's complete independence of the league.

I have taken very frank cogni-
sance of the avowed objections,
because we have come to this very test of sincerity. Except for the very inconsiderable minority,
which is hostile to any participation in world effort toward security, which our better impulses are ever urging, there is overwhelming sentiment favorable to our support of a world court. But I want the United States to give its influence to the world court already established.

Since any adherence must be attended by reservations, I am willing to give consideration to
our differences at home and
thereby remove every threatening
obstacle worth considering, so we

may go whole-heartedly to the world with an authorized tender
of support.

The United States is not a suppliant. Nor has it the slightest desire to become a master. It is and must be an equal, no more
and no less, regardless of its relative material power or moral authority, ever conscious of its own
rights, but never denying the like
to even proportion, to another.

BASIS OF NEGOTIATIONS

And what is the crux of conditions which I have ventured to suggest as constituting a basis
for negotiation?

The making of the world court
precisely what its name implies,
and for which we have so earnestly spoken.

Can it be possible that, despite
their protestations to the contrary, this is not what some of
our sister States at heart desire?
Must there be a test of sincerity
abroad as well as at home? Then
the more quickly it can be made,
the better for them and the better
for us. There is nothing to be accomplished in ambiguity. We want to know. And the only way to find out is to inquire.

I can not doubt that you will
accord, at least, the merit of simplicity and directness to what I have said. Understand clearly, I do not advocate compromise. I merely reiterate and stand squarely for every pledge I have made. I still reject as unwisdom, untraditional and un-American
any foreign political alliance or entanglement. I still "favor with all my heart association of free
nations, animated by considerations of right and justice, instead of might and self-interest,
so organized and so participated
in as to make the actual attainment of peace a reasonable possibility." I strongly urge adherence to the Permanent Court of International Justice as the one
and only existing "agency of
peace" to which we can safely
subscribe without violating the basic principles of our national being.

DOES NOT RETREAT

I neither advance nor retreat
from the position which I assumed in my recent message to the Senate. My sole purpose tonight has been to amplify the conservative suggestion which, at
what appeared to be a proper
time, I placed before the country
for consideration and judgment.
Broadly, and yet I trust with sufficient particularity, I have indicated ways and means for realization of our common aspiration.

Further than that I shall not
go. I shall not attempt to coerce
the Senate of the United States.
I shall make no demand upon the people. I shall not try to impose my will upon any body or anybody. I shall embark upon
no crusade. Hereafter, from time to time, as tonight, acting strictly

"MY MIND IS MADE UP"

I could not do otherwise. My soul yearns for peace. My heart is anguished by the sufferings of
war. My spirit is eager to serve.
My passion is for justice over force. My hope is in the great Court. My mind is made up. My resolution is fixed.

I pass from Washington to Lincoln. "With malice toward none,
with charity for all," accurately
depicts our attitude toward other nations. All in equal measure
hold our sympathy in their distress and our hope for the quick coming of better days. We would make no invidious comparisons.

It is but natural, nevertheless,
that we should feel, and it is proper that we should express our appreciation of conduct which
conforms notably to our own
conception of what honor, integrity, sagacity, and gratitude

FRUIT AND THE CHILDREN

A Word of Warning

Sound ripe fruit is good for
children, but damaged or over-
ripe fruit is exceedingly dangerous, especially at this time of
year, causing diarrhea, dysentery,
colic, indigestion and worms.

When you have reason to
suspect that your child has eaten
fruit of a doubtful character the best course is to administer a dose of Baby's Own Tablets at once, for these Tablets quickly
but gently cleanse the stomach
and bowels, and can be given with absolute safety even to the youngest or most delicate infant.

Baby's Own Tablets, the Canadian children's remedy, are also
a specific for teething troubles,
constipation, colds, and croup.
They bring calm, natural, health-
giving sleep and promote regular development. From chem-

It is the most durable of all

Hall's Distemper is a thorough

More About Einstein

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS
"It is with no disposition to discredit Professor Einstein that I presume to make this inquiry: 'Is it not possible that the slight bending of the rays of light from stars as the rays pass close to the sun may be due to refraction through the sun's atmosphere?' Perhaps there ain't no such animal as an atmosphere around the sun. All I want to know is the truth about the matter as near as we can get at it.—Fred A. Sweet, New York City."

The suggestion that a solar atmosphere might by its refractive effect account for the bending of the rays of starlight passing close by the edge of the sun on their way toward the earth was made as soon as the first confirmation of Einstein's prediction that such a bending would be found was obtained at the eclipse of 1919.

It was met by the supporters of the Einstein theory with the assertion that a solar atmosphere capable of producing the effect observed would have to be of an impossible density. In order to produce by refraction the observed bending of rays passing about 400,000 miles above the solar surface the supposed atmosphere would, according to Eddington's calculation, have to be of an order of density such that its pressure on the sun's surface would amount to some 10,000 atmospheres, i. e., an appearance presented by the

to nearly 150,000 pounds to the square inch!

Then, too, the light-ray while undergoing refraction would have to pass through about a million miles of the solar atmosphere, thus suffering an absorption which Eddington calculates would be equivalent to that produced by passage through 10,000 miles of our air. Now the absorption produced by only five miles of air is very noticeable, and yet the light of the stars photographed at the eclipse, and proved to be deviated about one and three-quarters seconds from their direct course, showed no effect of absorption, but shone with their normal brightness.

Another indication of the non-existence around the sun of an atmospheric envelope dense enough to produce by refraction the Einstein bending of light, is found in the fact that comets which are known to have swung around the sun, at perihelion, at a distance from its surface not greater than that of the light-rays in question, showed no effects of the enormous resistance which an atmosphere of the required density would have opposed to them.

The suggestion of refraction by a solar atmosphere no doubt gains in plausibility from the formidable appearance presented by the vastly extended solar corona seen at total eclipses. But here the appearances are certainly very deceptive, for bright as the corona looks, its density, as shown by Crommelin's investigations, must be far too slight to enable it to produce a noticeable refraction on light-rays passing through it.

As knowledge stands at present, then, it seems impossible to explain the deviation of light passing near the sun by the hypothesis of refraction, while the remarkable accordance of the observed amount of the deflection with the amount predicted by the Einstein theory is very impressive, if not finally convincing, as an experimental proof of the theory.

There is a mathematical completeness about the Einstein theory which fascinates its supporters, and yet Professor T. J. J. See, himself an able mathematician, absolutely denies the soundness of the theory. Other scientists also oppose it, or remain in doubt about it, largely because its acceptance involves a revolution in some of our long-cherished ideas about the nature of space, time, gravitation, etc.

But we are apt to think that many things are so or so, simply because we have always been taught that they were so or so, and have seen no reason to dispute the teaching. The Newtonian "attraction" as an explanation of gravitation, for instance, is just as incomprehensible, in itself considered, as the Einsteinian conception that space and time united have a kind of "curvature" which causes the phenomena of "falling." But we have an inherited belief in attraction, and have forgotten its difficulties, while space-time is a stranger on our mental doorstep, speaking a language that we have not yet learned.

THE CONFESSION OF A MURDERER
He is dead and I killed him. Faithful and true and his honeyed words and wiles had no effect. When she would tell me of his approaches, how I would grind my teeth and clench my hands in fury, and long for the time when I would wreak a just vengeance upon him. The time has come. I found him worn and helpless from cold and hunger, but there was no pity in my heart. I struck him down and revelled with heartfelt joy when I saw him sink down, bathed in blood and die by my hands. I do not fear the consequences. When I tell my tale I will be upheld by all.

"GET OFF THE EARTH"
"Git off the earth," says I. "With your maddy boots and your dirty face: Such a bother I never see. Forever worryin' an' pesterin' me." "Git off the earth," says I. "I didn't mean that, but I was so vexed. At the boy's disturbin' way: I never knew what he would do next. In his noisy, mischief makin' play."

able of doing terrible things. The things that a woman will do when she is jealous or when her love is not returned or when her child is involved, may be bad. But it does not necessarily follow that the woman is bad.

Because, under the strain of her feelings—and no man can ever fully realize how tense and keen those feelings sometimes are—she is really not herself. She is not normal. And she deserves the same sympathy which we all accord to those who are mentally deranged.

Women are rarely bad in the sense that men are bad. When you consider the crimes of men and see how utterly vicious or wicked they can be without adequate cause or excuse or impulse or purpose, you are tempted to put all women, even the bad ones, upon a pedestal. Because, as a rule, the wickedness of women springs from a few direct causes—jealousy, longing, mother-love of vanity—and all these impulses are planted in every woman's heart by Lady Nature.

Study carefully any case that comes to your attention of a woman doing something unusually wicked and you will find, somewhere or other, convincing proof that her emotions temporarily upset her reason.

In this case the very fact that the woman frankly confessed the whole thing ought to be proof enough that her mind was not properly balanced.

miration and enhanced regard of this country for Great Britain as an immediate consequence of her frank acknowledgement and sturdy assumption of a financial obligation which, though incurred for the preservation of her very existence, added materially to her already heavy burdens. Nor can I withhold from the German democracy just recognition of its new government's clear manifestation of faith in our consciousness of fairness as the chief requisite of a peace settlement between her Government and ours, and of our disinterestedness in all matters pertaining to the adjustment of European affairs.

HOPES FOR SETTLEMENT
It has ever been an irresistible impulse of our liberty-loving people to welcome a triumph of democracy over autocracy and a substitution of popular government for monarchical domination. Hence our earnest hope that a just settlement, terms of which we do not pretend to indicate, will be made in Europe, satisfying the just dues of democratic and heroic France, so that Germany may make good in her promise of reparations, and therein German honor which the monarchy had not conceived, and then take her place in support of the Permanent Court of International Justice.

Our neighbors to the south, for whom we have only good will and good hope, will soon, I trust, be in a position to make practicable resumption of fraternal relations with this country, and following the happy consummation of what more natural than that Mexico, too, along with Germany and, let us hope, Turkey, should accompany the United States, upon terms equally essential to her welfare, into the great throng of nations which will become indeed a true World Court.

Don't Complain Unless Your Complaint Gains Something

BY J. J. MUNDY

There is nothing more disgusting than the person who has an eternal grouch or a grudge against the world.

The chronic whiner is a good one to avoid.

You may have just cause for complaint but if you can think of nothing else you are doing yourself a great injustice.

Do not complain unless your complaint may gain you something.

If things are not right and an effort on your part might do some good, pitch in and turn things over and get them straightened out if you can.

But do not be eternally talking about it for by so doing you miss a lot of interesting things, and you may lose a lot of delightful friends.

No matter how much they may sympathize, even your friends get tired of hearing all about it's and that which is not as it should be.

This is not the way to get bad matters righted, either. There is a time for everything, to be most effective.

Stack your evidence, pigeon-hole your information for and against, and have it ready for emergency.

Meantime, live, love, and be happy, with your family and friends.

Something To Think About

BY BRUNO LESSING

The amazing disclosure in the newspapers of a woman claiming, for six years, that a well-known motion picture actor was the father of her child and then confessing that she had never had a child at all and that her entire accusation was untrue, was not only a remarkable feat of modern journalism but a most illuminating revelation of the possibilities of woman's nature.

All men and all women will agree that it was a dastardly act and that the woman deserves punishment, not only for having inflicted anguish upon her innocent victim but, principally, as an example to others, in order to uphold the ends of justice.

Yet, were you to ask the average, intelligent man, pointblank, "Do you consider her a bad woman?" he would hesitate to answer. And if, finally, after much pressure, you succeeded in dragging a reply from him, it would probably be, "She is a woman."

The adage, "Hell hath no fury like a woman scorned," was not a creation of the imagination. It was based upon centuries of revelations and facts and proofs. The poets—and they understand women better than business men do—are all agreed that, under the stress of the emotions, and principally that of love, all women are cap-

Germans Fear
French May Stop
Work On Zeppelin

Constance, Germany, July 21.—Uneasiness exists all around Lake Constance lest the French extend their occupation in Germany east to Lake Constance, and interfere with the Zeppelin which is under construction here for the United States government.

Little has been said about the machine which is to attempt flight to America. It is taking form in the great sheds of the Zeppelin company, at Friedrichshafen, and no definite predictions have been made by the builders as to when it will be ready to make a trial flight to Berlin preparatory to starting across the Atlantic.

Under the Versailles Treaty Germany is prevented from making Zeppelins for her own use, but this prohibition naturally did not extend to the manufacture of giant aircraft for France's allies and associates in the war. However, the Germans fear France will find some pretext to interfere with the building of the great ship, or to prevent the delivery of materials necessary in the work.

Lake Constance has been so closely identified with the building of Zeppelins that the citizens of all the towns around the picturesque little inland body of water have a keen interest in the mammoth craft which is being fashioned for the United States navy.

Indications now are that the Zeppelin will not be ready for its trans-Atlantic flight before the late autumn, and possibly not till next spring.

Japanese Boat
Grounds In Fog
Near Tsingtao

The "Salkio Maru" of the Dairen Kaisha, while en route from Dairen to Shanghai via Tsingtao, went ashore outside Tsingtao harbor in a dense fog early Saturday morning.

The steamer has been refloated and is on her way back to Dairen for repairs to the hull which has been damaged to a slight extent.

Passengers, cargo and mail has been transferred and will come down to Shanghai on the first available ship.

The sailing of the "Salkio Maru" scheduled for Tsingtao from Shanghai on the 24th is cancelled, while another ship will be chartered to replace the "Salkio Maru" during the two or three weeks of repairs.

Dry League Plans
World Wide Fight

Westerly, O., July 21.—Plans of the World League Against Alcoholism were announced in a statement issued by Dr. Ernest H. Cherrington, general secretary. Dr. Cherrington said that William E. ("Pussyfoot") Johnson now is to proceed from London to South Africa to aid in a prohibition campaign. He then plans to go to Egypt.

Dr. Cherrington will sail August 1 for the British Isles and Europe, primarily as one of the representatives to the seventh International Congress at Copenhagen, August 20-26.

Prof. John C. Cranberry of Southwestern University, Georgetown, Tex., now in Europe for the League, will survey conditions and will develop organization literature. He will seek to complete some of the work of investigation started by the late John C. Wooley, who died while representing the League in Spain.

Kanchow Is Now Menaced
By Two Armies: One Inside
Walls, One Waiting Without

Kanchow, Kiangsi, July 13.—Several weeks ago an army of more than five thousand Honan Soldiers recruited from the ranks of the brigands, arrived in Kanchow. They had been despatched here, it is said, by Wu Pei-fu, to go up to Kwangtung to fight.

Grave fear was felt by the local gentry as the former brigands approached the city, for rumors had preceded them to the effect, that they had looted all the small towns along the river. But arrangements had already been made to deprive them of their arms within the city walls.

This had the desired effect of removing the temptations that might beset them to plunder the shops. They were unwilling to live outside the city in barracks specially prepared for them, so the city schools dismissed their students, and the doors were thrown open for the soldiers to enter.

For the first week all went well. No disturbances occurred, but a few days ago, the town was enveloped by the crackling of rifles and the whizzing of bullets shortly after midnight. The disturbance was caused by the former brigands, who decided to enter the Yamen and demand payment of salaries from the Mandarin. In the event of a refusal, they intended to loot the city. But the patrol, made up of other Northern soldiers, and placed in charge of the city, soon dispersed this undisciplined mob, with a total of eleven killed, according to reports.

PURCHASE PEACE

The following day, in order to purchase peace, the local Chamber of Commerce paid out over twenty thousand dollars to the bandit army. They then moved their headquarters to the barracks outside the city, for they were soon to move up to Kwangtung.

But, yesterday, in a place some sixty li from here, the first contingent enroute to the fighting line, encountered the ninth division, said to be a mixed division before fleeing. The news that

NOT ANXIOUS TO FIGHT

All is quiet along the border. There is a rumor that the Southern army are very numerous on the other side, but have not yet attempted to cross. It is believed they could do so with little difficulty. In the meantime the local gentry do not know what to expect. It is generally feared that the soldiers here will not do any fighting in the event of an invasion from the south, but will resort to the usual looting and pillage before fleeing. The news that more supposedly "reformed" bandits are enroute for the vicinity, is not at all welcomed by the people. This province has scarcely known such evils in recent years, and the peace-loving natives are impatient at the action of the military authorities in the North in sending in such an element to disturb and molest the whole population. But their complaints avail nothing.

Claim Against
Sixty Club Made
By C. E. Shepherd

At the British Supreme Court yesterday before Sir Skinner Turner Mr. C. E. Shepherd sued M. C. Adamson of the Sixty Club, 4 Ezra Road, for $68.55 for food and beverages supplied from December 1922 to January 1923.

Captain Adamson did not appear, and after his name had been called, proof of service of the writ was offered by the Marshal of the Court, who said that the document was left at the Club on Monday last.

It was served on a lady, who was known by her professional or stage name as Jacqueline Nevins. The Judge inquired if it was not served personally on the defendant.

He was informed that Mr. Shepherd had told the officer of the Court that the lady in question was the wife of the defendant and that if the writ was left with her, it would be alright.

The Judge said he was not satisfied with the service. Could the marshal state whether a writ when served on a man's wife was served on him.

Mr. Shepherd confirmed the fact as to the indebtedness, and said that he had a number of letters from Captain Adamson and his wife as to the amount due.

The Judge decided to adjourn the case for a week, so there should be proper service.
